Why is sustainability important to you?

1776598

I want my children and grandchildren to have a better life and not leave messes for them to clean up.

Our quality of life depends on it.

To make a better future for our children.

To help not only the planet but people around live a happier/healthier life

Equitable access to resources

Without sustainability (sustainable practices) there is no stable future.

Because without it our ecosystem will no longer be able to support human life.

The health of our planet, nature, and people depends on it.

Why is sustainability important to you?

Sustainability means building community resilience that effectively confronts the most pressing issues that a community faces, while considering the reality of a changing climate.

Making decisions using taxpayer funds without knowing how you can sustain these efforts is pointless.

Environmental justice is a part of reclaiming equitable food access, green spaces, and safety for children. Marginalized communities are most harmed by climate change.

Because we need to start designing systems that don't rely on fossil fuels.

In order to prepare for and participate in the future we need to balance resources and take care of the earth.

Better quality of life now and in the future. For the community and nature.

Sustainability defines our new way of life going forward on this planet.

Sustainability is the hope for our present and future. Our life and others depend on it.

Because people treat it like a PR program instead of it being the cornerstone of our governance.

Why is sustainability important to you?

The unsustainable status quo got us to the climate collapse we are experiencing.

Because it helps ensure our future generations will have something after we are no longer here.

For future generations

Make the best use of our limited resources.

Good stewardship and forward looking

To help the world last longer

We only have one planet to live on.

I want future generations to be safe and healthy
